

MOB ALMOST CAPTURES MATHIS

MAYFIELD MEN FALL IN HANDS OF THE POLICE

Bent On Lynching But Are Glad To Be Turned Loose Upon Their Promises To Return Home

WORK OF THE CITY AND COUNTY OFFICERS

Paducah was in the hands of a mob last night—apparently.

In reality, the mob was in the hands of the Paducah police. The latter only kept their hands off the boys from Graves county until they could round up the whole bunch.

Very few got away.

The mob came from Mayfield actuated by high motives, even if it was bent on unlawfulness; but the predominance of the juvenile element marked the expedition for failure from its inception. It did not take the Paducah and McCracken county officers long to size up the strength of the invading force, and then what promised to be a serious affair was turned into one of the most comical proceedings in the history of Paducah.

At midnight sixty Graves county men and boys were howling for blood. At 2 o'clock they were promising to go home, if the police would only set them free to catch the train to Mayfield.

The arrest of the mob reflects credit on both the county and city officers. Sheriff Ogilvie, Jailer and Police Lieutenant Tom Potter's plans were admirably drawn up, while the deputies and patrolmen executed the plans as if quelling a riot was an every day occurrence in Paducah. Patrolmen Cross, Woods, Hurley, Hill, Alexander and Terrell, City Jailer Everts and Deputy Sheriffs Gus Rogers and Clark Fortson, armed with riot guns, participated in the round up.

Police Judge Puryear was called out of bed and went to the city hall. At his instance the police allowed the men to go, on condition that they return to Mayfield. Only two of them, H. L. Mullins and Ed Strunson, were arrested for carrying concealed weapons. Revolvers were found on them by Patrolman Hurley. They were released on bond of $50 each.

Ben Giles, of Paducah, also was arrested for the same offense.

How It Started.

The original mob of thirty, who followed the Graves county officers with the prisoner, had dwindled to less than a score when they reached the city, but their ranks were augmented by others following in vehicles and freight trains. Nearly 70 came on the 1:40 o'clock passenger train and many Paducahans joined the crowd.

The mob began to congregate at Fourth street and Kentucky avenue shortly before 10 o'clock, just after the officers arrived with the prisoner. The jail was their objective point, but they discussed various plans among themselves, and it was obvious there was no master mind in the crowd to direct its efforts. No rope was in evidence, but the talk was of shooting the prisoner.

They moved on the jail soon after 10 o'clock and the crowd on Sixth street constantly increased until, perhaps, 200 men were standing around. The most of them were waiting to see what would be done.

Patrolmen Cross and Hurley, of the day watch, were assigned to special duty, and Gus Rogers, Jailer Eaker and Clark Fortson stood out in front.

Rogers invited three men, selected from the crowd, to inspect the jail. No one moved toward the door, but they gathered into groups to discuss the meaning of this new offer. It was never accepted.

Soon it had its effect. Suspicion gained ground that the man never had been brought here, that he was spirited away again, that he was to be taken to Louisville or Eddyville on the first train.

Gradually, then swiftly, the crowd melted; some taking buggies to cross the country, others hurrying to the railroad station. What few remained were driven away by the police and deputies and the jail was deserted by the crowd outside.

That was after 1 o'clock and the train from Mayfield was expected to bring in a desperate crowd. The policemen and deputies armed themselves with riot guns and again took up their positions along Sixth street in front of the jail.

A street car load poured into Sixth street at Clark street and cabs and buggies filled with Mayfield men came to the scene.

That was the last demonstration. They were all together, and Patrolman Hurley told them to move.

The crowd sank back, but the officers closed in and lined them up on the sidewalk on Clark street. They were driven then like sheep to the city hall.

The boys knew it was all up, for at every attempt of one to stray, a barely officer with a shotgun ordered him back in line.

Revolvers were at a discount.

At the corner of Fifth street a man with a lantern was seen walking through his front yard after the drove passed, searching the grass. By a flash of his lantern it was seen he had a half dozen revolvers of different calibers in his arms. He was stopping to pick up another.

To the city hall they went and into the council chamber.

Fifty-six were seated in the front part of the hall, laughing and joking each other. As a new one came in, his nickname was shouted from the chairs. Only two guns were displayed in the crowd.

One wise man carried an army Colt's sticking conspicuously from his upper coat pocket and he was not molested.

Harold Finley, in knee breeches and not over four feet tall, but protesting that he is nearly 16 years old, carried a gun nearly as long as he was.

Presently the crowd became uneasy as train time approached and when it was announced that Judge Puryear downstairs had agreed to dismiss them, if they would go home, there was a cheer and a rush for the door, where four policemen searched each man as he went out.

From the indications this was the most peaceable crowd that ever attended any kind of a session in the council chamber. Not a gun, not a cartridge, was found in a Graves county pocket.

But a moment later the patrolmen glanced out the front window and the sight that greeted their eyes explained the whole situation. The boys were taking the time to pick their revolvers on the lawn on the west side of the city hall, where they had surreptitiously dropped them from the windows of the council chamber. They were speedily driven away.

Then new source of trouble arose. Some Paducah men immediately embraced the opportunity to supply themselves with firearms.

Patrolman Hurley brought in Mr. Tully, from the livery stable across the street, who, Patrolman Hurley said, was concealing revolvers in his desk. It was the opinion of the patrolman that Mr. Tully was putting the revolvers away for the men who found them around the city hall.

Mr. Tully said he thought he was just taking care of revolvers for his friends, who were fearful lest they be arrested for violating the law. He promised to bring the guns to Judge Puryear.

It took a long while to rid the city hall of the mob, and a longer while for the two arrested to furnish bond. Many of them missed the train.

STITCHED TO CHIN

Was the Tongue of Man Who Attempted to Kill Himself.

New York, July 27.—Alleging he was the victim of a conspiracy to railroad him to the state prison, Wallace K. Freeman, an expert chemist, the alleged possessor of a secret for making artificial camphor, who was arrested in his home at Oseawane, N. Y., on a charge that he embezzled $2,500 from Parke, Davis and company, wholesale druggists, attempted to end his life with morphine today in his cell in police headquarters. In St. Vincent's hospital to night it was said that Freeman's tongue had been drawn out and stitched to his chin to prevent his choking to death. He was still being walked up and down by two attendants at the close of an all day struggle to save his life.

MADE A FORTUNE

Did the Express Clerk Who Bought Panama Canal Bonds.

New York, July 27.—It was learned today that J. H. Bahe & company, bankers, had purchased the $5,800,000 Panama canal bonds recently allotted by the treasury department to Samuel Bwerly, an express company's clerk of this city. Bahe & company have in turn disposed of the bonds to Fisk and Robinson, who were the successful bidders for the greater portion of the issue. The price of the bonds already has advanced to 104.40, which means a profit of $27,024 for the clerk.

DYING MAN

Carried Eighty-Two Miles in Seventy Minutes.

Camden, N. J., July 27.—To save a human life a record run of 82 miles in 70 minutes was made from Cape May to Camden by a special train over the Reading railroad this afternoon. John Daubman, a machinist, 23 years old, of Camden, had been sent to Cape May to repair a disabled locomotive. His legs were crushed and a special train was given the right of way in its wild dash. Word had been telegraphed ahead, and the city ambulance was in waiting when the train pulled into Camden.

HE IS WEAK-MINDED.

Chief of Police James Collins believes that Mathis is an idiot. "From what I can understand, Mathis is weak-minded, and when completely reconciled to his position, talked freely to visitors at the jail," he said. "I think the boy is half-witted."

Exhumed Her Dog.

Petersburg, Ind., July 27.—Mrs. J. W. Bergen, of this city, had her dog buried at the Walnut Hill cemetery here on Monday. Lot owners protested and Sexton Elijah Morley this morning exhumed the animal and buried it in an adjoining field.

BROUGHT TO BAY WITH PRISONER

Charles Hart Has Narrow Escape From Mob.

Works a Ruse Successfully and Gets Away From Men With Drawn Pistols.

POLICEMEN TO THE RESCUE.

While being spirited away to a place of safety Allen Mathis was seized along with his guard, Charles Hart, the blacksmith, and for a time it looked as though the mob would get the prisoner. Through the desperate efforts of Hart the pursuers were outstripped, but an unfortunate break-down of the buggy the two were riding in, sufficed to bring them to bay again, and Hart with his charge was arrested by one man and started to town, where the stranger intended turning the negro over to the mob.

Hart, with Murray Howie, a regular deputy jailer, started out for the woods with Mathis. A circuitous route was taken and at the Palmer Transfer company stable on Jefferson between Fourth and Fifth streets, Howie left the buggy to go in and telephone to Jailer James Eaker.

Hart and the negro were left standing outside in the buggy. Suddenly three men came along and started for the buggy. They carried pistols and pulled them on Hart, demanding the negro.

They had recognized the prisoner.

Hart had his whip in hand. He struck the horse time and again and quickly put several squares between himself and his pursuers.

The Mayfield men jumped into a buggy standing near the stable and followed. In the chase Hart's gun dropped out and the deputy jailer was powerless to withstand an attack from his pursuers. All he could do was drive.

At the Home of the Friendless near Rowlandtown the buggy broke down and Hart ran into an alley with his charge. He was observed by one Mayfield scout, who pulled a pistol and demanded him to bring the negro along.

It seemed to be all up with Mathis.

Hart suggested going into the No. 3 fire station, Tenth and Clay streets, to telephone and secure a drink of water. The stranger agreed.

Patrolman John McEune was sitting in the station house, and seeing the stranger's drawn gun, suspected trouble and assisted Hart.

Hart telephoned to the police station and in a jiffy Patrolmen Cross and Alexander were detailed to the station house. They succeeded in rescuing Hart and his charge, and Howie, who had been lost in the shuffle, joined the party and the prisoner was spirited away once more.

DOUBLE LYNCHING.

The officers, who brought Mathis to Paducah, are of the opinion that the mob in Mayfield was fully determined to hold a double lynching last night. A negro prisoner from Hickman is kept in the Graves county jail for safekeeping, and several members of the mob inquired particularly if that prisoner had confessed his guilt.

GUS ROGERS WAS COOL.

Gus Rogers was cool last night and what he said to the mob around the jail went. The crowd had a wholesome respect for the big deputy. Once he sent at least fifty of them scattering by simply ordering them to clear out.

CALMLY HE CONFESSES TO HIS HORRIBLE CRIME

Shows Little Feeling Except That He Is Relieved When Doors of the Jail Are Closed

GRAND JURY WILL TAKE THE CASE MONDAY

Mayfield, Ky., July 27.—While naturally the crime of Allen Mathis remains the principal topic of conversation today, public feeling is quieting, and the opinion even is hazarded that it will be perfectly safe to bring the prisoner back, whenever preparations are completed for the trial. It is announced that the grand jury will be convened Monday and within ten days the negro will be tried in the circuit court. The term is not technically over here.

Ten Minutes to Spare.

With just ten minutes to spare and a desperate mob of thirty men at their heels, Joe H. Weeks, county attorney of Graves county, and W. B. Sullivan, John Galloway and Oscar Elmore, deputies, reached Paducah with their prisoner, Allen Mathis, the self-confessed assailant of 18-year-old Ethel McClain about 9 o'clock last night. They had no more than clapped him in jail and put their horses in the livery stable before the mob in rigs and on horse back came clattering into the city.

The Graves county men went directly to the Tully livery company, Fourth street and Kentucky avenue, and put up their horses. Then they gathered in a crowd, augmented by a few Paducahans, and talked over the best means of breaking into the jail.

Desperate Escape.

The action of the officers in getting away from Mayfield was almost desperate in its bravery. They took the mob by surprise and marched the prisoner out in the face of 800 infuriated citizens, who had not ceased hurling imprecations and threats at the prisoner and his guardians, when the words were frozen on their lips by the astonishing sight of the five forms on the jail steps.

Attorney Weeks raised his hand and held the mob spellbound. Then slowly he told them he intended taking the negro to another county, and assured the mob that anyone who attempted to interfere with the officers would be promptly punished.

The mob lacked a leader. It had not anticipated an effort to spirit away the prisoner before darkness came. It had planned to stand guard until then in order to prevent the officers tricking it, and then rush the jail.

As the deputies and the county attorney walked down the steps not a hand was raised against them in the front ranks, although many were armed with revolvers and Winchester. But farther back where the carriage was standing somebody began pulling at the tugs, and in a moment the horses were unhitched. Then an incipient cheer went up, but Attorney Weeks again commanded silence, and repeated his threat of prosecution. Again the lack of a leader was apparent. The mob hesitated and special guards of the jail hitched the horses once more.

The party climbed into the carriage and drove furiously right through the heart of the mob, that seemed to block the streets, clear to the outskirts of the town. They drove east three miles until a cross road was reached and then they turned toward the north, whipping the horses to an awful pace.

In the meantime some of the more daring in the crowd came to themselves, and hastily collecting rigs, set out in pursuit. About thirty pressed on with all speed and arrived in Paducah a few moments after the prisoner arrived.

The negro sat in stolid silence all through the journey. He is a dull witted fellow and seemed to appreciate little his predicament. However, as the jail door clanged behind him, and the bolt slipped, a look of relief crept over his face. That was all.

Story of Crime.

He confessed to criminal assault and told everything without a change of expression in his face. He said the circus people with the Robinson shows mistreated him and he left them at Mayfield, where he set out on a career of robbery.

It was for the purpose of robbery that he attacked the McClain girl on the lonely railroad track. He seized her pocketbook and opened it. She had no money. Then he grabbed her about the waist and declared his intentions. She screamed and he placed his hand over her mouth. She struggled, but he said this made him only the more determined. And then—

And then, Riley Leo Kelso, a negro, came in sight. Kelso saw them tussling and hurried. Mathis ran into the bushes and Kelso pursued until the girl called him back and asked him to accompany her home. He did so. There she repeated her story and the police were notified.

The word spread like wild fire, the worst not being known at first. Several arrests were made, but Jesse Cooley at the head of a section gang, finally arrested the negro, as he was running for a corn field.

This was at Clay Switch. The officers were notified and went after him. As they returned to the jail they were met by an infuriated mob. The negro was conducted into the jail and there he confessed. The girl was brought in and identified him. Kelso also identified him.

The girl is able to be up, although suffering terribly from the shock.

Confesses Brutality.

Mathis is a low type of the desperado and attributes the cause of his act to financial troubles.

"I was mistreated about my money," the negro declared this morning. He was found sleeping on the floor in the jail cage and did not appear to be nervous. He talked rationally, but claimed that he was not responsible for his acts at some times. From every indication he is not mentally unbalanced.

"My name is Allen Mathis and I was born in Brownsville, Tenn., sixteen years ago," Mathis stated to a reporter this morning. "My mother and father are both dead, and I have been working to support myself for years. I worked about tobacco barns in Mayfield for several years, but for the past four years had been away. When the John Robinson show played in Fulton I joined it and waited on the table one day. This is all the show business I engaged in. I went with the circus to Mayfield and remained there after it left, working about the tobacco barns.

"There is a colored pool room in Mayfield and the proprietor of it was recently robbed of some money. They accused me of breaking into the place but I was not responsible. The police asked me about it, and they mistreated me so much that I did not care what they did. Wednesday afternoon I started out into the woods. I had been sleeping in the woods, having no other place to go, and saw the white girl. I felt that I did not care what I did and seized her. First I asked if she had any money and she replied that she did not. I seized her and accomplished my purpose. I did not repeat the act and did not run. The girl walked up the hill and secured a negro man to return to me with her. I went into the woods when they appeared. I did not run at all but hid at Clay Switch when I learned that I was wanted. I simply was mistreated about my money and did not care what I did."

Mathis talked coolly and did not seem to care if his life was in immediate danger. He was pretty much fatigued from the excitement of the day and seemed glad to secure an opportunity to sleep.

Before the negro admitted his guilt he told several different stories. He claimed he did not force her to the ground. When buckled down to the truth and made to feel that a lie would be of no service to him, he admitted his act, claiming that the woman fought him and seemed to have great strength. He alleges he did not bruise her or beat her.

"My mind comes and goes," the negro declared, "and I hardly know what I am doing at times."

This was another of Mathis' dodges. He has never been tried for lunacy.

Had Mathis in Country.

Mathis did not spend all of last night in the county jail but was taken away from the place shortly after his arrival and guarded by Deputy Jailer Murray Howie and Mr. Charles Hart, the blacksmith. Howie and Hart took Mathis to the Roberts farm in the "Barracks" west of Paducah. They returned the prisoner at 4 o'clock this morning and at that time all excitement had died down and the jail was not guarded when Howie and Hart returned. The coolness displayed by the prisoner at all times was astonishing to the guards. He did not realize or care, it seemed, whether he eluded the mob or was taken by it.

Chief McNutt's Story.

C. H. McNutt, chief of police of Mayfield, who captured Allen Mathis, was in the city this morning on business, and said:

"After I had captured Mathis near Clay Switch and was coming back to town, a crowd of men, about 50 I should say, stopped us and it was only after I had talked to them several minutes and told them that I did not think the negro would be taken away from Mayfield, that they would leave. I believe they would have hung him there if they had thought he would be carried away."

"When we got to town, I held the negro in my office for a few minutes. In my office was a box of rope used for hanging criminals, which had never been opened. A crowd of men came into the office and broke open this box, tied one end of the rope to the table and were determined to hang the negro by throwing him out the window. Some other officers came in then and we managed to dissuade them. There were two things that saved the negro from immediate lynching. One was nobody was drunk. The other was the fact that it was daylight."

"The Cumberland Telephone company, for whom the young woman worked, immediately threw open its lines to anybody who could give information concerning the where-

Daily Thought.

The trolley line is the plumb line of civilization."

The mob was thwarted, for which a lasting credit is due the quickness of the Graves county authorities and the coolness of Paducah and McCracken county's officers. Now, let speedy justice be meted out to the brute. He has confessed his crime; there is no question of the outcome of his trial; but let the law take its course. It will be well for Graves county; it will be an example of no small weight of protection to the community. After all, there is no punishment more severe than the contemplation of inexorable fate fixed by law justly administered. In the heat of passion men take such creatures out and perpetrate, sometimes, hideous tortures on them. That is but satisfying an insane craving for revenge. It is soon over with the guilty wretch. But what of him sitting day after day in the close confinement of a prison cell, with everything around him to remind him of his helpless captivity, with nothing to do but sit and count the hours as they bring him nearer to his fearful, certain doom? This is the punishment—the punishment of a man's own mind—that makes him desire death as a sweet succor—that makes the "death watch" an actual necessity. Such punishment meets only the certain climax of execution of the sentence, without delay, yet without undue haste, to bring about the result for which laws are established.

The board of health is going to meet and consider the weeds, how they bloom. We serve notice on these excellent practitioners and public spirited gentlemen that the subject is ripe to seed. It is unreasonable. Enough to seed. Let us join the palmett and consider the lilies. They are much more interesting, and consideration of them will bring forth just as rich fruits of philosophical speculation, which as all that has ever yet been produced by the consideration of Paducah's weeds.

We are glad it was not a real Graves county mob; for that is an instrument to reckon with. But since the Paducah and McCracken county officers have shown their metal, it is probable that little trouble will be experienced in affairs of this kind in the future. Had the lynching been accomplished here, it would have been Mayfield's vengeance, but Paducah's crime, and the blot of lawlessness would have shown on the fair name of this city long after the terrible deed, which was revenged, was forgotten.

If the board of health can't find an ordinance providing for a city mower, it can always place ultimate confidence in the ruthless scythe of Father Time. Or, why not adopt some withering resolutions about the weeds?

The aristocracy of wealth has always appeared cold from the outside, but that of Pittsburgh seems to be getting Thawed out.

Bradshaw's creek, or Cross creek, it matters not. "A rose by any other name would smell as sweet."

The Mayfield Messenger sent a reporter along to write up the lynching.

St. Louis, July 27.—The mistake of Alonzo Kimberline, a bellboy at the Terminal Hotel in union station, in giving a suit case containing $150,000 in cash and negotiable securities to the wrong man, caused William Bender, Jr., of Mankato, Minn., eighteen hours of anxiety, which ended when the suit case was returned intact.

Thieves Rob Trunk.

Bowling Green, Ky., July 27.—Thieves entered the home of Lew Walthal, a well-to-do farmer of this county, and secured $500 from a trunk, where Walthal had hid it for safekeeping. None of the family was awakened by the intruders, and the theft was not discovered until this morning. It is believed that the robbery was committed by some one well acquainted with the surroundings, as they secured the trunk key from the clock, where it was kept. Walthal lost some money in a recent bank failure, and since that has used a trunk as his depository.

Owensboro, Ky., July 27.—Alex Young, of Cincinnati, who was shot in the face with a shotgun at this place Tuesday by William Watson, alias "Box Car Bill," of Louisville, will lose the sight of both eyes. The shooting occurred on the river at Enterprise, Ind.

The Cure of Headaches.

By Osteopathy.

"What bone would you pull to treat a headache?" asked a layman. Any bone that may be out of its correct position in the neck or back, so as to bring its pressure upon the nerves which express the pain sense—that is, if the headache happens to be due to a bony slip; but of course it may not be at all. That is one frequent cause, but there are many others which are apt to be operative. A muscular contraction in the back, in the neck, or over the head, may likewise cause headache. Indigestion, eye-strain, mental fatigue, a sluggish liver, constipation, kidney disease, and many other things are frequent causes of headache. Hence the cure of headache osteopathically is the cure of its cause or causes. To find the remedy these causes, having as they usually do an anatomical basis, requires special and thorough training, and that is why osteopathy exists as an independent school of medicine. Its practitioners are specialists. They cure headaches, as they do other diseases not by "pulling" a bone, unless a bone needs "pulling," but by finding the cause of each special headache and giving that cause whatever treatment is needed to cure it. So in a dozen different headaches none might be treated alike osteopathically, and yet ten or eleven of the dozen would likely be cured.

Osteopathy is probably doing more for suffering humanity than any recent discovery, and I should like for you to investigate its merits. I should be pleased to see all who may be interested in osteopathy at any time from 9 a. m. to 12 and 2 to 5 p. m.

Osteopathy is the sane, rational treatment of illness and disorders.

HARD TO KEEP

IS PEACE WITH MAN WHO WON'T STAY DOWN.

Ben Boyd Has Troubles With Another Negro and It Cost Him $50 to Settle.

It cost Ben Boyd, colored, $50 and the "trimmings" to "keep the peace." Ben's idea of the peace does not coincide with that of Police Judge E. H. Puryear. That made the difference. It was Ben's first appearance in police court since Judge Puryear took his seat, and the souvenir fine will be the more appreciated.

Ben Boyd and Will Taylor had an altercation. It all started over Taylor's attacking Boyd's sister. Ben separated the two and Taylor turned on him. Taylor pulled out a knife and Boyd grabbed a fence picket. He felled Taylor but the latter was stubborn and came after more.

"Judge, de reason I hit dat n'ggah wif a fence picket was to keep him frum cuttin' me," Ben explained. "I shore would have hit him agin, while he was on de groun' but I didn't want to hurt him. Judge, dat n'ggah got up evah time I knocked him down, and I nevah did hab sich hard time keepin' de peace."

"Ben, how many times have you been here in police court?" Judge Puryear inquired.

Ben hesitated. He did not have a counting machine and the police records are rather voluminous.

"Well, you have been up entirely too many times. Fifty dollars and costs against each of you."

IN THE COURTS

In Police Court.

George Grigg, the actor, was fined $25 and costs in police court this morning for being drunk and disorderly. Grigg rooms at the New Richmond hotel and yesterday is alleged to have shot his pistol out of the window. He has been connected with the Casino Summer stock company at Wallace park. Other cases: Jim Mason, breach of the peace, dismissed; disorderly conduct, $25 and costs; Ben Giles, carrying concealed weapons, $25 and costs; Nina Hornbeck colored, breach of the peace, $10 and costs; Jimmie Hale, colored disorderly conduct, left open; Sanders Reynolds, colored, drunk and disorderly, $50 and costs; Joe Grief, malicious striking, dismissed; $25 and costs for striking in sudden heat and passion.

VANDALISM

CAUSING PROPERTY OWNERS TO COMPLAIN TO POLICE.

Vacant Buildings Are Looted and Maliciously Torn Up By a Gang of Boys.

Expressions from property owners over the city indicate considerable indignation at the way vacant buildings are looted and destroyed by gangs of small boys. A building is not vacant for a day before the windows are broken out, the building marked and scratched and in some instances the window casings and door frames have been broken out.

The Jake Biederman Grocery company has a vacant store room on Clements street, which has been so looted by some persons that the company has issued notice that criminal prosecution will follow should any one be detected destroying its property. Three plate glass windows have been shattered and the electric chandeliers practically have been ruined. The same kind of story comes from over the city, and expressions that the police should stamp out the vandalism are frequently heard.

JOHNNIE DUNN

MAKES SIX BUCKS PER AND HE WILL WED.

Pays Filial Visit to His Mother, Mrs. Eliza Sweeney, in the County Jail.

A calamity at the county jail is threatened and all because Johnnie Dunn, a son of Mrs. Eliza Sweeney, declares he is to marry. Johnnie was in jail himself once, but of late has been working at the Bell saw mills. He cut a finger off and was at the jail visiting his mother, Mrs. Eliza Sweeney, this morning.

Mrs. Sweeney has been married several times and has outlived all her husbands. She has about decided that she was married enough, but threatened to go it once more when her youthful son made the startling announcement that he intends marrying as soon as he gets well.

"I make six bucks per," Johnnie declared, "and intend to tie up just as soon as I get my hand cured and return to work."

Mrs. Sweeney, who had about 140 days to serve yet, declared that she would marry also. Mrs. Sweeney moreover declares that she has selected her husband and that he is also a boarder at the jail.

FIELD ESTATE.

Must Pay Extraordinarily Heavy Property Tax.

Chicago, July 27.—The three-cornered controversy between the board of review the executors of the Marshall Field estate and the city corporation counsel's office came to an end yesterday when the taxing body decided that the Field estate should be taxed on a total of $180,000,000 this year, including back taxes. The decision means that the executors of the estate will be compelled to pay the county $2,800,000, which is more than the total amount of personal property on which Mr. Field was taxed during the last year of his life.

CARPENTERS MAY GO OUT ON STRIKE

Demand Increase of Twenty-Five Cents a Day.

Louisville and Henderson Districts Are Affected By the Trouble Now Imminent.

SATURDAY DAY OF WALK-OUT.

It is reliably stated that 180 bridge carpenters employed on the Louisville and Henderson districts of the Illinois Central will walk out Saturday because a demand for higher pay has been refused them.

A well known local bridge carpenter stated this morning that it had been agreed that this means be adopted. The pay the men now receive is $2 per day for ten hours, and they want $2.25 for ten hours. Foremen want $90 per month, a slight increase. There are many carpenters at work on the old Tennessee river bridge, tearing it down, and if the walk-out is enforced, it will mean a temporary suspension of work on this job.

DEATHS OF A DAY

Richard Dearing.

Richard Dearing, of Louisville, Ky., and a traveling salesman for the Sutherland Medicine company of this city, was found dead in a room in a hotel at Shreveport, La. Thursday morning. There were no circumstances surrounding his death which could give any clue to a probable cause, other than heart failure. Richard Dearing was married and had four children, the family living in Louisville. He also had one brother. A year ago he went west for his health, thinking that he had consumption. He came back improved and had been traveling since. For two days he had been sick in Shreveport, though not seriously, it was thought. The family has sent to Shreveport for the body.

Mrs. Lynn Ely.

Mrs. Lynn Ely, 20 years old, died yesterday afternoon at 3:15 o'clock of consumption at her home near Maxon Mill. She was the daughter of Prof. W. W. Morris, the well known school teacher of Maxon's Mill, and besides her husband and infant child, she is survived by the following brothers and sisters: William Charles, Benjamin, Sessie and Hallie Morris, and Mrs. Nellie Oliver, wife of Attorney George Oliver, of Paducah; and Mrs. Fannie Graham. The burial took place this morning at 11 o'clock in the Massacemetry.

Stallion Bites Off Boy's Toe.

Bowling Green, Ky., July 27.—The twelve-year-old son of Charles Thomas of Polkville, this county, met with a painful and peculiar accident. He had gone up into the barn loft to feed a blind stallion, and while pushing the hay down in the rack with his foot, the animal, which was undoubtedly hungry, bit one of his toes off.

ANOTHER OFFER.

City Will Have to Be Prompt in Tenth Street Deal.

Mr. Sam Hubbard, who represents Mrs. T. H. Puryear in the deal in which the city proposes to buy 100 feet of property necessary to open Tenth street from Broadway to Kentucky avenue, this morning announced that he had an excellent offer for the entire property and is considering closing it at once. The city wants the property necessary to open Tenth street, but is holding out on account of the board of park commissioners who have ideas of building a boulevard. The city will have to act quickly or the property will be closed out, and it may mean that condemnation proceedings will have to be brought to secure the right of way over the lot.

TWO POLICEMEN ARE EXONERATED

Ferguson and Hill Appear Before the Board.

BONDING COMPANY MATTER.

Two policemen, who felt they were being talked about, were exonerated of any blame at a meeting of the board of police and fire commissioners yesterday afternoon. The patrolmen are Scott Ferguson and Ernest Hill.

Patrolman Ferguson was accused of stealing a bicycle, belonging to Allen Johnson. The circumstances as proven were: A negro named Will Jackson identified the wheel, which was found in an alley, as his. He sold it to the policeman, who in turn sold it to Sam Simon, a saloon keeper. The machine changed hands twice more before it was found by the real owner. Patrolman Ferguson said someone maliciously accused him of theft.

Patrolman Hill's trouble was with a woman named Mrs. Mae Everett, of Burnett street near Twelfth street, who said he by threats made her give him $10 he accused her of stealing from a railroad man. The patrolman said he made the woman give up $10, at the railroad man's request, and gave her back $2, which she claimed the man owed her. The patrolman then turned over the balance to the railroad man.

Hugh Edwards was elected engineer for the new steamer now ready to be installed in the fire department.

James Collins, chief of police, was granted a month's leave of absence, beginning August 1. He will return August 7 to be in charge during Emancipation day, on the 8th.

The request of a bonding company to be released from policemen's bonds was referred to Mayor Yeiser and the city solicitor.

A Modern Miracle.

"Truly miraculous seemed the recovery of Mrs. Mollie Holt, of this place," writes J. O. R. Hooper, Woodford, Tenn., "she was so wasted by coughing up phlegm from her lungs. Doctors declared her end so near that her family had watched by her bedside forty-eight hours; when, at my urgent request Dr. King's New Discovery was given her, with the astonishing result that improvement began, and continued until she finally completely recovered, and is a healthy woman today." "Guaranteed cure for coughs and colds. 50c and $1.00 at McPherson's drug store. Trial bottle free.

Dog Buried in Cemetery.

NATIONAL CIGAR STANDS

Two Profits vs. Five Profits

See the economy and directness of the straight-line selling system of the National Cigar Stands:

The tobacco that used to be handed from planter to leaf-broker, from broker to cigar manufacturer, from manufacturer to jobber and from jobber to retailer, from retailer to you, now goes direct from the fields to the smoker through the arrow-straight flight of the National Cigar Stands which controls its own factories and is itself virtually its own producer.

And Here Are Some Results:

Two small profits—one manufacturing, one retailing—instead of five! Operations in million lots, shared in by all the stands equally, instead of separate, scattered purchases in lots of a hundred or a thousand! A scientific system of cigar keeping, patented by the National Cigar Stands Co. and used by the National Stands exclusively, instead of the old-fashioned cigar case that only varied the monotony of cigars too dry by making them too moist! And, finally

In the Bishop's Carriage

By MIRIAM HUGHES

(Copyright, 1906, by The Bobbs-Merrill Co.)

"Oh, are you bound for the Cruelty, too?" I asked. "Why, no, am I. And yes—that's the Cruelty!"

The Cruelty stands just where it did, Mag, when you and I first saw it; most things do in Philadelphia, you know. There's the same prim, official straight-up-and-downness about the brick front. The steps don't look so steep now and the building's not so high, perhaps because of a skyscraper or two that've gone up since. But it chills your blood, Maggie darling, just as it always did, to think what it stands for. Not man's inhumanity to man, but women's cruelty to children! Maggie, think of it, if you can, as though this were the first time you'd heard of such a thing! Would you believe it?

I walked from that to find myself marching up the stairs behind the bishop's rigid little back. Oh, it was stiff and uncomplaising! Beryl Blackburn did that for me. Poor, pretty, pagan Beryl!

My coming with the bishop—we seemed to come together, anyway—made the people think he'd brought me, so I must be just all right. I had the man bring in the toys I'd got out in the carriage, and I handed them over to the matron, saying:

"They're for the children. I want them to have them all and now, please, to do whatever they want with them. There'll always be others. I'm going to send them right along, if you'll let me, so that those who leave can take something of their very own with them—something that never belonged to anybody else but just themselves, you understand. It's terrible, don't you know, to be a deserted child or a tortured child or a crippled child or have nothing to do but sit up in that bare, clean little room upstairs with a lot of other stragglers—and just think on the cruelty that's brought you here and the cruelty you may get into when you leave here. If I'd had a doll—if Mag had only had a set of dishes or a little tin kitchen—if the boy with the gouged eye could have had a set of tools—oh, can't you understand?"

I became conscious then that the matron—a new one, Mag, ours is gone—was staring at me, and that the people stood around listening as though I'd gone mad.

Who came to my rescue? Why, the bishop, like the manly little fellow he is. He forgave me even Beryl in that moment.

"It's Nance Olden, ladies," he said, with a dignified little wave of his hand that served for an introduction. "She begins her Philadelphia engagement to-night in 'And the Greatest of These.'" Oh, I'm used to it now, Maggie, but I do like it. All the lady-swells buzz about me, and there Nance stood preening herself and crowing softly till—till from among the bunch of millinery one of them stepped up to me. She had a big smooth face with plenty of chins. Her hair was white and her nose was curved and she rustled in silk and—

It was Mrs. Dower Diamonds, alias Henrietta, alias Mrs. Edward Ramsay. "Clever! My, how clever!" she exclaimed, as though the sob in my voice that I couldn't control had been a bit of acting.

She was feeling for her glasses. When she got them and hooked them on her nose and got a good look at me—why, she just dropped them with a smash upon the desk.

I looked for a minute from her to the bishop.

"I remember you very well, Mrs. Ramsay. I hope you haven't forgotten me. I've often wanted to thank you for your kindness," I said, slowly, while she was slowly recovered. "I think you'll be glad to know that I am thoroughly well-cured. Shall I tell Mrs. Ramsay how, bishop?"

I put it square up to him. And he met it like the little man he is—perhaps, too, my bit of charity to the Cruelty children had pleased him.

"I don't think it will be necessary, Miss Olden," he said, gently. "I can do that for you at some future time."

And I could have hugged him; but I didn't dare.

We had tea there in the Board rooms. Oh, Mag, remember how we used to peep into those awful, imposing Board rooms! Remember—like a poor little red-haired, eager up at the block—when you were brought in there to be shown to the woman who'd called to adopt you!

It was all so strange that I had to keep talking to keep from dreaming. I was talking away to the matron and the bishop about the playroom I'm going to fit up out of that bare little place upstairs. Perhaps the same child doesn't stay there very long, but there'll always be children to fill it—more's the pity!

Then the bishop and I climbed up there to see it and plan about it. But I couldn't really see it, Mag, nor the poor, white-faced, wise-eyed little wails that have succeeded us, for the tears in my eyes and the ache at my heart and the queer trick the place has of being peopled with you and me, and the boy with the gouged eye, and the cripple, and the rest.

He put his gentle thin old arm about my shoulders for a moment, when he saw what was the matter with me. Oh, he understood, my bishop! And then we turned to go downstairs.

"Oh—I want—I want to do something for them," I cried. "I want to do something that counts, that's not a heart in it, that knows! You know, didn't you, it was true—that I loved downstairs? I was—I am a Cruelty girl. Help me to help others like me."

"My dear," he said, very stately and sweet, "I'll be proud to be your assistant. You've a kind, true heart and—" chilla and in a red toque with some of the same fur blocked our way as she was coming up.

We looked at each other. You've seen two peacocks spread their tails and strut as they pass each other? Well, the peacock coming up wasn't in it with the one going down. Her coat wasn't so fine, nor so heavy, nor so newly, smartly cut. Her toque wasn't so big, nor so saucy, and the fur on it—not to mention that the descending peacock was a brunette and . . . well, Mag, I had my day. Miss Evelyn Kingdon paid me back in that minute for all the envy I've spent on that pretty rig of hers.

She didn't recognize me, of course, even though the two red coats were so near, as she stopped to let me pass, that they kissed like sisters, ere they parted. But Mag, Nancy Olden never got haughty that there wasn't a fall waiting for her. Back of Miss Kingdon stood Mrs. Kingdon—still Mrs. Kingdon, thanks to Nance Olden—and behind her, at the foot of the steps, was a frail little old-fashioned bundle of black satin and old lace. I lost my breath when the bishop hailed his wife. "Maria," he said—some men say their wives' first names all the years of their lives as they said them on their wedding day—"I want you to meet Miss Olden—Nance Olden, the comedian. She's the girl I wanted for my daughter—you'll remember, it's more than a year ago now since I began to talk about her!"

I held my breath while I waited for her answer. But her poor, short-sighted eyes rested on my hot face without a sign.

"It's an old joke among us," she said, pleasantly, "about the bishop's daughter."

We stood there and chatted, and the bishop turned away to speak to Mrs. Kingdon. Then I seized my chance.

"I've heard, Mrs. Van Wagenen," I said, softly, and oh, nicely as I could, "of your fondness for lace. We are going abroad in the spring, my husband and I, to Malta, among other places. Can't I get you a piece there as a souvenir of the bishop's kindness to me?"

Her little face-mittened, parchment-like hands clasped and unclasped with an almost childish eagerness.

"Oh, thank you, thank you very much; but if you would give the same sum to charity—"

"I will," I laughed. She couldn't guess how glad I was to do this thing. "And I'll spend just as much on your lace and be so happy if you'll accept it."

I promised Henrietta a box for tonight, Maggie, and one to Mrs. Kingdon. The dowager told me she'd love to come, though her husband is out of town, unfortunately, she said.

"But you'll come with me, won't you, bishop?" she said, turning to him. "And you, Mrs. Van?"

The bishop blushed. Was he thinking of Beryl, I wonder. But I didn't hear his answer, for it was at that moment that I caught Fred's voice. He had told me he was going to call for me. I think he fancied that the old Cruelty would depress me—as old Cruelty would depress me—as he dreamed of to come and carry me away from it, just as at night, when I've waked shivering and moaning, I've felt his dear arms lifting me out of the black night-memory of it.

But it was anything but a doleful Nance he found and hurried down the snowy steps out to a hansom and off to rehearsal. For the bishop had said to me: "God bless you, child," when he shook hands with both of us at parting, and the very Cruelty seemed to smile a grim benediction, as we drove off together, on Fred and—

THE END.

INTERESTING LETTER

WRITTEN BY A NOTABLE WOMAN

Mrs. Sarah Kellogg of Denver, Color. Bearer of the Woman's Relief Corps, Sends Thanks to Mrs. Pinkham.

The following letter was written by Mrs. Kellogg, of 1628 Lincoln Ave., Denver, Col., to Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass.: "Dear Mrs. Pinkham: For five years I was troubled with a tumor, which kept growing, causing me intense agony and great mental depression. I was unable to attend to my house work, and life became a burden to me. I was confined for days to my bed, lost my appetite, my courage and all hope. I could not bear to think of an operation, and in my distress I tried every remedy which I thought would be of any use to me, and reading of the value of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to sick women decided to give it a trial. I felt so discouraged that I had little hope of recovery, and when I began to feel better, after the second week, thought it only meant temporary relief; but to my great surprise I found that I kept gaining, while the tumor lessened in size. The Compound continued to build up my general health and the tumor seemed to be absorbed, until, in seven months, the tumor was entirely gone and I a well woman. I am so thankful for my recovery that I ask you to publish my letter in newspapers, so other women may know of the wonderful curative powers of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."

When women are troubled with irregular or painful periods, weakness, displacement or ulceration of the female organs, that bearing-down feeling, inflammation, backache, flatulence, general debility, indigestion or nervous prostration, they should remember there is one tried and true remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound at once removes such troubles.

No other medicine in the world has received such widespread and unqualified endorsement. No other medicine has such a record of cures of female ills.

Mrs. Pinkham invites all sick women to write her for advice. She is daughter-in-law of Lydia E. Pinkham and for twenty-five years under her direction and since her decease has been advising sick women free of charge. She has guided thousands to health. Address, Lynn, Mass.

Remember that it is Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound that is curing women, and don't allow any druggist to sell you anything else in its place.

"My dear," he said, very stately and sweet, "I'll be proud to be your assistant. You've a kind, true heart and—"

Company Sends All Calls to Rivals to Force Higher Payments.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., July 27.—The Bell Telephone company has won a complete victory after a long contest with the doctors of the town of Pittston, who are fighting against paying business rates for their telephones.

Then the telephone management hit upon a scheme. When a call came for a doctor it was sent to physicians in nearby towns. The Pittston doctors saw their business falling off and yielded.

When a pitcher in the Kitty league yells ten hits he is taken out, and if the performance is repeated again is consigned to the tail and uncut. In brief, he is considered outclassed and gets his release. In the big leagues this season hitting streaks have served to put several pitchers on the bench. It does not necessarily mean that the pitcher is all in. Hitters are improving and yesterday's games in the National league will show that Pastors of Brooklyn, yielded 10 hits to St. Louis, Fraser, of Cincinnati, 14 to New York; Hoss, of Cleveland, 13 to Washington, and Kison, of Washington, 21 to Cleveland.
